REVEAL PLOT TO CURTAIL DRAFT PLAN

SPAIN FACES CRISIS; PREMIER ANNOUNCES SITUATION IS GRAVE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madrid, via Paris, May 31.—According to the newspapers the constitutional guarantees will be suspended again in two or three days. Premier Count Romanon has declared that the situation in Spain is becoming more grave and more confused every day and every hour of the day.

Minister of the Interior Burela has prohibited all public manifestations relative to international questions as dangerous to the interest of the important diplomatic negotiations now going on.

The constitutional guarantees were suspended in Spain at the end of March. It was reported in Washington that a revolutionary movement was in progress, but this was denied by the Spanish ambassador.

State and Federal Agents RAID COLUMBUS, OHIO, ANTI-REGISTRATION PROPAGANDA HEADQUARTERS.

GOVERNMENT IS ALERT

Department of Justice Takes Precautions to Prevent Men of Military Age From Leaving Country.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Columbus, O., May 31.—A plot with national headquarters in this city organized to induce young men of military age all over the United States to refrain from registering for conscription next Tuesday has been uncovered by state and government secret service agents, according to an announcement made this afternoon by Governor Cox.

Details of the plot which was said to have extended into many states, became known when United States marshals raided a print shop and office at 111½ South High street, where practically all propaganda literature was printed and distributed. It was said that it appeared to be well financed and well organized.

Anti-draft Propaganda.

Washington, May 31.—Letters sent out by the World Peace Association, C. A. Ryan, secretary, with headquarters at Northfield, Minn., advising recipients to join the association and claim exemption from army draft on conscientious objector grounds, were referred to the Department of Justice today by the League to enforce peace, which suggested appropriate action to stop a propaganda designed to embarrass the draft law.

Watch Florida Coast.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 31.—Sheriffs along the Florida coast watched today for slackers who might attempt to leave for foreign shores by launch and steamer to avoid registration. Governor Jatts says his information is that not a few draft subjects have already left for Cuba.

Taking Precautions.

Washington, May 31.—It was announced today that steps had been taken by the department of justice to have men subject to military registration from leaving the country before June 5.

In compliance with the conscription act twenty members of the Washington baseball club today registered for military service. Only two, Mobridge and Craft, are exempt. The former is over age, and the latter is not yet twenty-one.

AUSTRIAN POLES ASK INDEPENDENT NATION

Copenhagen, May 31.—A national convention of Austrian-Poles held in Cracow has endorsed a resolution calling for a reestablishment of independent Poland with access to the sea. The resolution expresses the hope that the Austrian Emperor would support the project.

Apparently there was no interference from the Austrian authorities, although Cracow as a fortress is occupied by Austrian troops. The resolution was adopted in defiance of Germany, although Polish hopes for an access to the sea are based on an imposition of Prussian Danzig. The Poles hope to include that part of Warsaw now held by the Germans, in the independent state.

Germans Plan.

The program of German majority socialist delegation to the Stockholm conference, according to a statement of Dr. Edward David, a delegate, carried no endorsement by the German government. Dr. David intimates that the action of the delegation is only binding upon its party. The hope that the German government will be bound amenable to the majority socialist program of peace without indemnities or indemnities, is based partly upon the party's influence in Germany.

Dr. David does not hope that peace will result directly from the Stockholm movement. The utmost he expects is that the conference will lay a basis for a peace movement on which peace lovers in all countries can unite.

Should the conferences prove abortive, Dr. David declares that Germany has perfected its organization so as to live on what it can raise and it will continue the struggle without weakening. The German socialist apparently intends to remain in Copenhagen for some days before proceeding to Stockholm.

Stockholm, May 31.—The Dutch and Scandinavian socialist committee has been informed by the British labor socialist organization will send two representatives, both members of parliament, to the Stockholm conference.

GERMAN OFFICIALS IN POLAND RESIGN

Copenhagen, via London, May 31.—According to an unconfirmed private report from Germany, the provisional council of state in Poland Tuesday transmuted the resignations of its members to the Austro-German authorities. The council has been pressing for the appointment of a regent for the kingdom and the regularization of the Polish administration. Polish socialists are in open opposition to the new order in Poland. Their leaders were arrested this week and sent to concentration camps in Germany.

The Polish agency of Lausanne recently received a communication from Warsaw stating that the council of state had decided to suspend its official functions as a protest against the policies of German authorities toward Polish national aspirations, according to a Geneva dispatch on Tuesday.

ITALIAN MISSION IN WASHINGTON MAY REMAIN MONTH DISCUSSING WAR PLANS

The Italian war mission now in the United States, which is headed by Ferdinando Di Savoia, Prince of Udine and a member of the reigning house of Italy, has announced that it may remain in Washington a month, discussing war plans. The mission includes Enrico Arlotto, minister of transportation; Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless; Augusto Ciuffi, former minister of public works; Francesco Saverio Nitti, former minister of agriculture, and S. E. Borsarelli.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR DEMONSTRATION ON DUTY DAY PROGRESS

Whole City to Turn Out in Tribute to Those Who Register for Possible Service at the Front.

Under the direction of Roy Wisner, chairman of the special committee named by the Commercial club to arrange for a city-wide patriotic demonstration on Duty Day, June fifth, plan for that celebration are rapidly being formed. Mayor James A. Fa-theron, the proconsul, has called upon the citizens of Janesville to suspend their work for the afternoon that all may turn out in tribute to the men who are registering for the conscription.

Throughout the country cities are planning celebrations of a patriotic nature, and in their observance of the day will make use of the shade. Invitations have been extended to all organizations in the city to participate in the exercises. A parade will be held. The band will play. Speakers are being secured, who will talk from a rostrum erected on the balcony of the Court House. Company M will put out to lead the march aspect to the May 31st. The women's organization will be on hand to give assistance wherever possible. Business will be suspended, schools will be closed, and the whole city will turn out for a demonstration of patriotism appropriate to the tremendous and significant of the day.

A meeting of the committee in charge of the demonstration has been called for this evening, at which time definite arrangements will probably be made for the many details of the afternoons exercises. Ministers of the city will be urged to preach Duty Day sermons on next Sunday, and every effort will be made to focus the attention and the patriotism of the city between the young men between twenty-one and thirty-one in whose honor the demonstration will be held.

LOCAL WAREHOUSES GET U. S. ONCE OVER

Volunteer Officials Backed by Government Inspect Janesville's Facilties for Food Storage.

Janesville's storage facilities were inspected by the government today in view of possible leases.

Bower City tobacco warehouses received special attention from the inspectors.

Local warehouses in line with the visit all manufacturers and commission men manufacturing or dealing in and storing of any type of food supplies were called upon for a tabulation of supplies at present on hand.

What Uncle Samuel thinks of a recent agitation to ban the "weed" from the trenches and army camps is seen in the special order to the inspector to cause press date on the amount of tobacco available and on hand in the southern Wisconsin growing district and in view of this special attention was paid to supplies of the "weed" in Janesville warehouses.

This work of making inventory of the entire nation is in charge of the National Board of Fire Underwriters under the direct supervision of the government. The station has been assigned its services and the government accepted. W. B. Calhoun, Chan-
L. Easton and R. L. Nicholson of Milwaukee were the men who were in Janesville today. They are inspecting Rock and Walworth counties.

Fire hazard possibilities and suggestions to building owners are important points considered by the men.
Discrepancies, defects or damage conditions are reported to owners with expert advice and remedy to eliminate such with the view of lessening foot-drag losses through complaints for payment.

In Brooklyn yesterday more than one thousand Germans were in line when the marshal's office was closed after five thousand applications had been registered. Many remained in line all last night.

cluded. The announcement means men whose wives or children have means of support are liable to service.

An estimate reveals that almost one-half of the men available for draft are married. Any sweeping exclusion of married men would seriously deplete available material.

The announcement prepared Tuesday by the provost marshal general's office states:

"The act establishing the selective draft authorizes the president to exclude or discharge from the draft those in a status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support, which renders their exclusion or discharge advisable. Only those whose dependents may be wholly upon them for support should claim exemption."

Men between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, must register whether or not they propose to claim exemption."

ITS TREASON TO STOP MAN'S REGISTRATION

To coerce, conspire against, or thwart anyone within the age limit from registering for the nation's first draft of 500,000 men is an act of treason.

This was the declaration of federal officials who are conducting a state-wide investigation into a concerted propaganda movement to keep young men from registering June 5. It is reported that printed anti-registration propaganda is being circulated in various parts of Wisconsin.

It was stated on high authority that this work is being done by members of certain organizations. The names of these organizations and the locations in which this work is going on is withheld. Secret service agents are ferreting out information on the subject and arrests will be made, it was said.

It is also stated that anyone interfering with enrollment of men for military service is subject to prosecution under the national defense act. Such cases have come to the attention of federal authorities and are being investigated thoroughly.

SPORTS

RACE IN NATIONAL, CLOSE, BIG SURPRISE

The dovetail surface of the National leagues first division is a smooth one, but it in the mildest terms. The fact that the Giants didn't grab the handle of the schedule and run right through the opposition and even yet has failed to smash back the complaining rivals has sprung a lot of interest where the word was supposed to be dead. Man for man, the Giants stick out preeminently above opposition clubs. As soon as figured on paper, they look like the class and were expected to prove it. The only weak spot was supposed to be the pitchers. Pitchers, at that, should have been the least of New York worries, for a team constituted as the Giants, should be able to spot the rest a good pitcher or so, and then wizze by in fairly decent form.

Comparing the Giants' infield with other National league infields is sufficient to prove the preponderance of power among the Polo grounders. Every man of the quartet is able to hit better than .350 and there is at least one man capable of .360. There are no other infields that can match the Giants'. The outfield has three batters hitting the ball at .300 or within a few points of that mark. One catcher—Lew McCarty—is a .300 man at every stage of the game.

That's why the Giants were figured to make it a one-club race. The pitching staff, weakened in spots, was not far from being bad, but the field and track records, because of the physical training derived from this form of exercise they have been urged as a preparation for army service, efforts to push inter-collegiate competition is the only remedy. Without this outside competition the games lack interest. This fact has been brought forward by the results at Louis Chevrolet's spring. The interest in inter-class activities was almost less than in the past four years, in spite of the fact that unusual efforts were made to get the student interest.

But when opposition clubs began outplaying the Giants—deliberately doing things the Giants couldn't help—something was wrong. The op-

FRANKENSTEIN'S MONSTER.

In a useful and thoughtful editorial, the New York Sun says:

The German government is now brought face to face with the fact that like Frankenstein, it has created in the Pan-German settlement a monster which may ultimately result in its overthrow.

"For once somebody gets that allusion correctly," says the Wall Street Journal. "Usually the 'monster' is designated by the name of Frankenstein, by a writer who never read Mrs. Shelley's only considerable work, adopting what is perhaps one of the most general of newspaper misquotations."

The essence of Mrs. Shelley's story was that Frankenstein, a student of physiology, created something in the image of man, perfect physically, with the necessary mentality for muscular control. What he could not do was to endow this creature with a soul. The consequence followed in the acts of the irresponsible monster, and the book ends in a haze of this creator chasing his creature, in order to destroy the monstrous thing he has created.

There is here a striking parallel to the system of education which has built up in Germany a government without a soul. It has every physical attribute that modern science can give it, and all the mentality that disciplined educators can bring. But when once it adopts the monstrous theory that a nation is not bound by moral and spiritual considerations, that it can do in its national capacity what it would not tolerate in transactions between its citizens, it creates an uncontrollable monster whose desire to the world's life is only measured by its capacity for mischief.

This is the fruit of a system of education which has organized every branch of effort in Germany until the individual has ceased to apply the rules of common morality to the government under which he lives. All the rest follows. Where there is no soul, no spiritual essence, the sensations which are deep in the hearts of mankind, forming the basis of all laws, cease to exist. Frightfulness becomes a matter of course, and the world, in self-defense, rises to combat a monster which threatens its very existence.

It is sometimes asked with surprise how the German can contemplate the entire moral sentiment of the world arrayed against him, without asking himself if there is not something rotten in the system upon which his position is based. The answer is that the civic soul has been educated out of the German people; and that until something can be done, either to exterminate the monster which the German system has created, or to breath into it what is, in truth, the breath of life, the war must go on and the soul of democracy must face the ordeal by fire to save a threatened world.

AN HONEST DRAFT.

Within a few days the machinery for wholesale conscription of our young men will be set in motion. The American people are hoping that the operating of that machine will be free from any taint of scandal.

Perhaps the handling of the drafting machinery will be absolutely impartial and incorruptible. Still that would not always have been possible. It is not so many years ago that the drafting of registration lists for elections was badly tainted. Names were enrolled of men that had been dead for years, and the politicians brought in gangs from other states to vote on those names. All kinds of frauds were worked off on an indifferent public.

Today popular sentiment is strong against these methods, and the politicians do not dare employ them so much. There are too many risks about it. It is cheaper to manipulate legislation through lobbies. But no doubt there are plenty of election officials who are still purchasable. Some of the draft clerks might be open to quiet influence, accompanied by the sufficient consideration, to see that this or that name was accidentally omitted.

It is not likely that this thing will take place on any considerable scale. Public sentiment would be so bitter against it, that comparatively few officials would dare try it. However, if there are anywhere any dishonest men in charge of this drawing, they will note the penalties provided by the act. They should also remember that conviction for this offense would be accompanied by a peculiar ignominy. Where people would tolerate an election fraud they will be very bitter against this form of preference, and will favor the limit of penalty for it. In view of this it seems likely that efforts to corrupt the draft will be rare so that we shall get a very honest conscription. It is absolutely necessary.

THE LESSON.

There was a striking lesson taught the world by the Memorial day parades the nation over. This one day, peculiar to the United States alone, a day upon which the soldier dead of the nation are honored and their memory revered, was transformed this year into a double commemoration. First, for the departed dead, and second, for the living who go to do battle for the nation's honor and integrity, many perhaps never to return. All classes of citizens joined in the demonstration, from school children to aged veterans, many too weak to march the long distance prescribed. It was significant of the sentiment of the people of this nation, a lesson to the world at large. America has awakened to the grave responsibility that confronts it and responds.

NEEDS ENCOURAGEMENT.
What Russia evidently needs just at present is encouragement and the proper stimulus of leaders who can control the situation. The Russian army is of necessity a mil quality at present, but if proper steps are taken at once and the soldiers are equipped with proper war material, they will re-enter the calculation of the allies and prove a formidable foe for the Teutonic powers to figure on. The suggestion that Japanese troops unite with the Russian army in an offensive movement is not a bad idea and it is probably possible that even now Japanese units are in Russia or on their way there for just this purpose.

DUTY DAY.

It is proper that next Tuesday, federal registration day, should be observed as a holiday. It is an appreciation of the young men whose names are to be enrolled as possible soldiers in some various line of service during the coming struggle of ages. Janesville plans for a Duty day celebration and invites all societies, of whatever classification, civic, patriotic or military, to take part in it. It is to be hoped that every citizen will be patriotic enough to heed the mayor's proclamation and close their shop or office or place of business during the afternoon so that the day may be given proper significance.

After banging up and down the crowded roads Sundays in a recklessly driven automobile, narrowly escaping accident a dozen times, many men will walk up to the conscription desk to register their names with fear and trembling.

The fact that a man can spend five dollars for a new silk flag and holder for the same, does not prove that he could sacrifice $3.50 worth of interest money to buy one of the Liberty bonds.

Congress may be indifferent to the high cost of flour and potatoes, but surely it must be moved to have a price dictator by the sufferings of the gasolene users.

Some of the amateur gardners put their plants upside down, but it is not reported that the inhabitants of China have seen them coming up as yet.

It is an awful shock to the emancipated Russians to learn that in a democracy anyone has to do any work or any fighting to preserve their liberties.

The married man would of course volunteer for the army if he were single, and when the single man marries he'll never hide behind his wife's petticoats.

The people who think they can use this war as a means of getting elected to something are perfectly right, as they will be elected to stay at home.

Don't discourage the boy who is going on to the farm to escape school, as in a few months he will go back to school to escape the farm.

There are 435 congressional districts, and hence 435 different opinions as to where those thirty-two army camps should be located.

The Daily NoveletteEYE, EYE, SIR!

Weedon Trivis, the susceptible oculist, could never bear to keep a pretty woman waiting, so when he opened his office door and saw Flora Cubé among the crowd in his waiting room he nodded to her brightly, pretending to think that her turn was next.

"With you, please," he smiled twinklingly, and the fair one rose and followed him into his office.

"Now would you mind sitting here and reading to me the smallest line you can see on the white card on the opposite wall?" he blubbered.

"Not at all," she replied pleasantly.

"Let me see—I can read up to—The mouse ran towards the east."

"Very good," he announced.

"Very good. Now what can you read on the red card?"

"P. H. L. V. Over the hills is out. W. G." she read fluently.

"Excellent. Now would you mind trying the blue card?"

"Not in the least. But is all this quite necessary, doctor?"

"Of course," he sneezed soapishly. "Doubtless, though you have only a slight case of jiggismatism."

"No," she explained puzzlely. "I have a bill for ploofactory lenses from Diggert and Daggert, who have just made me their collector."

Frowning brockishly, Weedon Trivis paid the bill and bowed her out through the back yard, where she was forced to tread in a dozen puddles.

MASTER SCIENTISTS WILL WIN THE WAR
SAYS STANLEY HALL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Worcester, Mass., May 31.—"This is pre-eminently a war of scientists."

So says Dr. G. Stanley Hall, one of the most famous of the "pure scientists" of America, professor of psychology and president of Clark university.

"The war's greatest battles have been fought, not on the battlefields of Africa or Vietnam, but in the universities and laboratories of Europe and America. Joffre, Hindenburg and Jellicoe have had no great part in its direction as have the Wright brothers, Marconi and Simon Lake; and these gentlemen in turn were dependent upon those anonymous generals of modern warfare, the scientific scientists, who have worked out the principles of physics and mechanics upon which all their inventions were based. More and more it has become apparent that the decisive factor in war today is the ability to mobilize the nation's knowledge. If democracy is to win this world war against autocracy, it must press into its service not only our Edisons and Bellahs and Ford, but the masters of many very abstract sciences whose practical application has hitherto been almost overlooked. There are some vital problems of war which only the psychologists can solve."

Psychology Produces Results.

"It is evident that applied psychology has produced results in this war which it was never possible to attain before. Men have endured more, they have shown more heroism and daring and have submitted to more punishment than in any previous war.

"Our country may as well think of going to war without guns, tanks, or equipment, as without knowledge of applied psychology. The council of national defense seems to have recognized this; and the national research council within that body will, I understand, contain representative American psychologists.

Conscription is Scientific.

"The economic aspects of selective conscription have been thoroughly grasped. The nation has recognized that it would be disastrous to upset industry, and especially the allied steel, agriculture, by the blind and amateurish volunteer system. But the psychological aspect is no less important.

Selective conscription in its highest sense will mean the placing of each individual in the nation in the position for which he is most fit, not only physically but psychologically. It is possible that certain types of strong men could never be made into active fighters. They might be patriots.

A new central office will be constructed with all modern equipment in the new physics building which is under construction. The exchange will be modern in every way and will have a four position switchboard and rest rooms for the operators.

otic, capable of being carried away by the enthusiasm of the moment; and then, when the impulse of moment is over, it is dominantly that of sudden flight, the flight part a disastrous panic. Again, sending the wounded who have recovered back to the battle line may or may not be wise; only the psychologist or the physician can tell. Perhaps the wound may be too serious for the soldier to be transformed into a useful service but weeks of individual soul by condemned.

Pensioned Idleness Bad.

"The disposition of incapacitated soldiers, during the war and after, is one of the questions which psychology must help to solve. Pensioned idleness may prove to be the very worst possible solution. It may not only deprive the country of useful services but weaken the individual soul by condemning it to uselessness."

"Yes, I am for the war. America must win. Things dearer than life itself are at stake—democracy, the American idea, the right of man to shape his own destiny. I love the German people and the German devotion to silence. I love their culture—not the kultur, which is a hybrid creation of science and art, but the genuine German soul and how the time is not far distant when we may sit down with the great minds among our present enemies to face and solve our common problems."

"In the meantime our nation could not do different than it has done. And the American idea is to become triumphant, we must match strength with strength and knowledge with knowledge. We must make the Germans in one respect, by calling to the national service all the scientists we can muster, in whatever branch of scientific research they have happened to be engaged."

VARSITY TO HAVE OWN PHONE SYSTEM

Madison, Wis., May 31.—A contract for a new university telephone exchange, to be organized on an economic and more efficient basis, has been let by Eugene C. Madsen, J. T. Tolson to the Bell Telephone company. The contract will not go into effect until September 1 but the remodeling will begin at once.

Under the present system there are 527 telephones in the university. It is hoped that the number will be reduced to 484 under the new plan. A record of the phone calls in and out on all the phones of the system has been kept during the past month and the figures will be used as guide to the new system. Several party lines will be substituted in places where the phones are not in constant use so as to cut the expense.

A new control office will be constructed with all modern equipment in the new physics building which is under construction. The exchange will be modern in every way and will have a four position switchboard and rest rooms for the operators.

THOUSAND U. W. MEN IN ACTUAL SERVICE

Madison, Wis., May 31.—According to the estimates of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, over one thousand students have left the school and are in active service for their country. Of this number about three hundred are in military or other governmental activities. Three hundred and fifty are on the farms of the country and about two hundred are taking courses at the university which will fit them for service in the army or navy. Of the three hundred in military service, one hundred and fifty are at Fort Sheridan. The remaining men are working in the navy, national guard or in the navy yards on the eastern coast.

The faculty is also actively working. About thirty are serving on the State Council of Defense, and a large number of the instructors and professors in the agriculture school are travelling among the farmers of the state.

WO PRISONERS FLEE JAIL AT MANITOWOC

(By Associated Press)
Manitowoc, Wis., May 31.—This morning experienced its first full day after twenty years. Early Wednesday morning, Richard Block and a man named McQueen escaped, after sawing the bars of a cell window. It is believed the men got away on a freight train. Block was awaiting trial on an indictment of three counts, one of which concerned his fourteen-year-old daughter. He also was charged with arson in connection with the burning of a house and barn and was suspected of having something to do with the wrecking of the Ashland Limited train on the Northwest road here several months ago. McQueen was charged with embezzling $25 from a sewing machine company.

MEMORIAL DAY CROWD STIRRED BY ADDRESS OF REVEREND LEWIS

To Hold Postponed Services at Cemetery Next Sunday Afternoon at Three O'clock.

That a day set aside for the honoring of those who died in the defense of the nation was a fitting occasion to meditate over the ideals of those men, of the nation for which they died in battle, and to consider the task before those of this generation which is still unfinished, of carrying our country's doctrine of democracy and equality to all the world, was urged by the Reverend F. E. Lewis of the Carroll Memorial M. E. church, in the address of the day yesterday afternoon when the Memorial Day exercises were held at the Myers Opera House.

The Reverend Lewis brought the significance of the day to a head and summarized the patriotism of the people in one of the most forceful addresses that has been heard in Janesville for some time. His was a talk not only of tribute to the dead, but of great application to those who are left and to those upon whose shoulders now falls the responsibility assumed by the country.

S. A. in War.

"Lincoln did not want war. No man in history hated war more than he did. We cannot review his words or sentiments in his attempt to save the union from bloodshed. But war came. Its memory is made sacred because with it the world was saved. Woodrow Wilson did not want war. But war has come. We assume its responsibilities. This nation would not follow a man who believed more in war at this time than does the president. It is because we know that he poured out his last measure of oil upon the troubled waters that we are willing to share the responsibility of the conflict. The liberty of man is in the balance. The rights of free peoples are in jeopardy. Small liberty, equality, fraternity perish from the earth! Are they but beautiful dreams? Is the world for all men, or for the few? Does the high and mighty spread its wings over every nation? Are there zones where cultures and demons roam at will to devastate and destroy? These are questions we have set ourselves to the proper answer to them will mean the peace of the world. Should the German empire be destroyed the one prey of Great Britain worth saving?

The postponed Memorial Day services will be held at the cemetery next Sunday afternoon. All Grand Army men, Spanish War Veterans, and ladies of the W. R. C. and auxiliaries and all other citizens who wish to take part in the services are asked to be at the chapel at three o'clock.

Reverend Lewis.

Reverend Lewis spoke in part as follows: "It is befitting that we meet on this occasion and pay tribute to our fathers and their deeds of lasting memory. We have not lived long as a nation, but it is not length of years that fills history with eternal import. Our short life as a nation is contrasted with the feeling of a series of epochs with immortal achievement. Within a hundred and forty-one years we have lived more and wrought greater than many nations have in decades. The bit of history that turns our attention especially to this day is a part of our life which has filled all our days with the feeling of a series of epochs with immortal achievement. Within a hundred and forty-one years we have completed our task we shall need read rightly our past history. In four hundred and eighty years before Christ, Leonidas and three hundred Spartans defended the pass of Thermopylae against the invasion of Xerxes, the tyrant king of Persia. In that last epoch in the cause of democracy against the intrusion of despotism. And for hundreds of years after every school boy and girl in Greece was required to recite in public the names of these three hundred immortal patriots. We cannot recite the names of all those who went forth to save the Union in '61 to '65. Their number is legion. But we may know many thousands of them fall on battle by shot and shell beyond recognition and their very names have been lost to history. Yet we would lift our voice in grateful accents to that roll of immortals. We would rehearse their achievements and set up their monuments. We need but mention that there were three times settled in that war. These were the freedom of the slaves, and the preservation of the union. And it will be well to remember it meant the freedom of the slaves on this western hemisphere. There were great men who advised Lincoln to let the South go if they would remain in peace. That world would have meant that slavery would have been eradicated in a number of Northern States, but it would have remained in the South with its outstretched arms ever reaching westward. The preservation of the union meant not simply that a few States should not be permitted to withdraw at will and set up their own form of political government and such a form of life it meant the end of democracy. When Lincoln stood at Gettysburg and said 'four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal' he realized as did no other man of his day that we are not yet in a position to realize that great ideal waiting whether that nation can long endure." The dynamics of the old world were looking with satisfaction at our rebellion and pointing with the finger of scorn to attempts of free peoples to govern themselves. If the union had been overthrown it would have meant a mortal blow to democracy in the earth and could have meant another wall around systems of despots and monarchies. The saving of the union was the test of democratic form of government. Let us not forget this.

Democracy, Self Realization.

"Every great event or epoch in history not only solves some problem, but at the same time it gives birth to other problems. America's unfinished task is the completion of the structure begun and defended by our fathers. Democracy is self control and self realization. It is self control in the midst of self realization. It is the attempt of a people to realize in the open, un molested, free speech and the pursuit of happiness. Recently in New York City there was unveiled a statue which represented a man chiseling himself out a slab of stone. There he was with chisel in hand and hammer in the other chipping away the stone that imprisoned him. He was gradually, yet wonderfully, emerging from the crude mass of rock, through the crucible of self realization. It is self realization through self effort. And the unfinished task of our country is bring forth this task of the nations beautiful perfecting and self controlled.

"Three of four years ago we were in a great stir over our own political and social conditions. Representatives of the old world powers looked again with scorn saying the great nations of the world had not the may postpone this matter until the adjourned meeting tomorrow afternoon.

The bit of history that turns our attention especially to this day is a part of our life which has filled all our days with the feeling of a series of epochs with immortal achievement. Within a hundred and forty-one years we have completed our task we shall need read rightly our past history. In four hundred and eighty years before Christ, Leonidas and three hundred Spartans defended the pass of Thermopylae against the invasion of Xerxes, the tyrant king of Persia. In that last epoch in the cause of democracy against the intrusion of despotism. And for hundreds of years after every school boy and girl in Greece was required to recite in public the names of these three hundred immortal patriots. We cannot recite the names of all those who went forth to save the Union in '61 to '65. Their number is legion. But we may know many thousands of them fall on battle by shot and shell beyond recognition and their very names have been lost to history. Yet we would lift our voice in grateful accents to that roll of immortals. We would rehearse their achievements and set up their monuments. We need but mention that there were three times settled in that war. These were the freedom of the slaves, and the preservation of the union. And it will be well to remember it meant the freedom of the slaves on this western hemisphere. There were great men who advised Lincoln to let the South go if they would remain in peace. That world would have meant that slavery would have been eradicated in a number of Northern States, but it would have remained in the South with its outstretched arms ever reaching westward. The preservation of the union meant not simply that a few States should not be permitted to withdraw at will and set up their own form of political government and such a form of life it meant the end of democracy. When Lincoln stood at Gettysburg and said 'four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal' he realized as did no other man of his day that we are not yet in a position to realize that great ideal waiting whether that nation can long endure."

Reverend Lewis.

Reverend Lewis spoke in part as follows:

"It is befitting that we meet on this occasion and pay tribute to our fathers and their deeds of lasting memory. We have not lived long as a nation, but it is not length of years that fills history with eternal import. Our short life as a nation is contrasted with the feeling of a series of epochs with immortal achievement. Within a hundred and forty-one years we have lived more and wrought greater than many nations have in decades. The bit of history that turns our attention especially to this day is a part of our life which has filled all our days with the feeling of a series of epochs with immortal achievement. Within a hundred and forty-one years we have completed our task we shall need read rightly our past history. In four hundred and eighty years before Christ, Leonidas and three hundred Spartans defended the pass of Thermopylae against the invasion of Xerxes, the tyrant king of Persia. Keep Your Pantry Clean

Your food is served direct from the pantry, and one of the most important factors in keeping your home healthy is to make sure that your pantry, and everything in it, is clean. A liberal use of will accomplish this. Cups and saucers, plates, glasses—everything that goes from the pantry to your table—should be washed regularly in Borax.

Sprinkle Borax around to clean out water bugs and roaches.

Use 20 MULE TEAM BORAX to protect Your Last Line of Defence against unsanitary food.

Borax is recommended by the leading authorities on sanitation and hygiene in their published works.

LAKES STATION FITS HUNDREDS FOR SEA

Wisconsin and upper Michigan boys, who have volunteered their services to their country by joining the "first line of defense," and who are now in one of the several naval training stations, are rapidly making the first rudiments of the life of a sailor. The "rockies" of a month ago, to use the seagoing sailor's expression, will soon be "gobs" and "jackies."

The training they are receiving at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, where the majority of the boys from this recruiting district have been sent, is having its effect upon the life and the mode of living of the young men, and, according to those who have been fortunate enough to be allowed to visit the station, it is making new men of them, both in spirit and in health. But, even though training now is serious business, there is no play.

The days are well taken up with drill, sham battles, duty and study periods, and yet ample time is left for recreation, amusements and athletics. The work is varied and interesting and consists of drills in artillery and infantry, target practice with rifle and revolver, signalling, physical drills, swimming, elementary seamanship, including knotting and splicing, and handling of boats under both oars and sails.

Upon arrival at the station the recruit is given preliminary instruction, is taught personal cleanliness, how to care for his body and his clothes, how to mend torn clothes, how to care for himself. He is provided free with an outfit of uniform clothing, bedding and other necessities to the value of $60, and is taught how to mark this outfit so that nothing will be lost.

Regular hours for rising and retiring are features of the life at the station. The bugle sounds reveille at 6 o'clock every morning, when all must turn out and be ready for muster at 5:30. From 5:30 to 7:00 o'clock the recruit is engaged in cleaning himself, his clothes and the camp. Breakfast hour is over at 8 o'clock, and from that time until 3 o'clock in the afternoon he is divided into periods of drills, studies and instruction. Extra periods of drill are held after 3 o'clock for those who cannot swim, or who are deficient. Dinner is served at 12 o'clock and supper at 6. Leaves, with permission to visit the nearby cities, is also being granted to all except those who are restricted for violation of the rules.

Athletics and recreation of every description receive every encouragement, and one afternoon each week is set aside for athletic events. In fact, more than one of the young men who represent Wisconsin and upper Michigan at Great Lakes, have remarked that, had they been able to buy this training and the health it has brought with it, they would have been willing to pay for it. Now Uncle Sam is paying them for taking this training, and the young men are striving to show that they may become trained sailors and prove their loyalty to their country.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt will answer personally all letters pertaining to matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper, if accompanied by a two cent stamp.)

Dinner napkins should be folded square and placed on each plate. To fold them in fancy or intricate form is considered boarding house or hotel style.

Admirer: I think you would make mistake if you ask the young lady again to accompany you to your place after after successive refusals. You say she has always given satisfaction; but they may have been "white lies," prompted by her politeness and the desire not to hurt your feelings. You'd better wait until you have some sign from her—an invitation to her home, or some special mark of favor. If she does not give you reason to believe that she would accept your next invitation, you'd better give up the pursuit as hopeless.

Maidam: For a church wedding, you should dress as you would for an afternoon reception—in your grandest daytime costume, with hat and white gloves. If you are asked only to the church, you may wear your best suit with a smart hat and light colored gloves if you wish.

Evansville News

Evansville, May 31.—The May fete that was arranged for last Saturday but was postponed on account of cold rainy weather took place Tuesday afternoon at Leonard Park. On this afternoon the weather man was in good humor for the weather was all that could be desired. At the hour set, found a large crowd assembled at the park and shortly before three o'clock came the band of school children marching from the school grounds and the fete "was on." First the program was "Welcome Sweet Springtime," a chorus given by all the grades. Then came eight tripping dancing little fairies preceding the May Queen, Miss Gertrude Amidon, and escorting her to her throne. After the seating of the queen, Miss Eleanor Polson danced majestically and gracefully before Her Majesty. At the same time the Girls Glee club sang "With Lillies Sweet and Daffodils." Then came the dances of all the grades. These dances included the Sunbonnet Babies and other such pretty dances by the wee babies of the kindergarten to the graceful Rose Dancers by the girls of 6th and 7th grades. A number of folk dances by different groups from the second and third grades. The dance of the Fairies by eight little kindergartens girls. The unique "Domino Dance" by the seventh grade girls was cleverly done and lastly the stately minuet dances of pretty girls of the fifth grade. Then came the grand finale, the dance around the May-pole by the children of the third grade. From start to finish, it was a huge success, and reflects a great deal of credit upon all who took part and to the teachers who have worked and drilled so carefully that it might be successfully carried through.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MARY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two girls of twenty. Are we too young to go to a hotel to dinner if properly chaperoned?

(2) When going to dinner at a hotel how many forks are used? And how are they used?

(3) What do you do when going to a hotel to dinner with two men?

(4) After quitting a man of he has some of your belongings how would you proceed to get them?

(5) We have a girl friend who is always telling lies about us. We treat her the best we know how. We are among the best girls of this town. We go to such nice places that she is very jealous. What shall we do with her?

(6) What is your opinion of a girl who is always making good excuses when we ask him to call? He leaves our town. J. C. M. A.

(1) You are not too young if you are properly chaperoned.

(2) As a rule there is either one fork or two and they are ordinary dinner forks. One is used for the dinner and the other for salad. If there is pie a third fork is brought.

(3) The men will show you the way to the dining room and there you follow the waiter to your table—the men follow you.

(4) Write him a courteous letter and ask him for the things he has of yours. Say nothing in your letter to antagonize him, and at the same time do not be so friendly that he will think you want him to come back.

(5) There is nothing you can do except show by your character that the things she tells are untrue. Do not do things you would not be willing to have anyone see you. If you live above criticism, people will not be ready to believe gossip. You must be very careful; a good reputation and a good character are priceless.

(6) The man does not want to call on you or he would not make excuses. In the first place you should not ask him to call. It is the husband's place to ask for the privilege.

Household Hints

TO PRESERVE STRAWBERRIES.

Specialists in commercial handling and preserving of fruits in the United States Department of Agriculture have worked out the following directions (which may be applied also to house-hold conditions) for preserving strawberries so that just enough syrup of the proper consistency can be made in advance with the amount of syrup the berries can be packed attractively without floating, and no syrup will be left over, which in many blessed little woman worried this way," said Patty when she had gone.

"It seems as if there was something all the time to keep her on a strain."

"She is well, but she is nervous and brings strain almost to the breaking point sometimes, then released, strain and release, strain again and release, a constant succession."

"And one must constantly be braced to meet the next strain even when the tension is temporarily removed," sighed Patty, thinking about the war and the effort it would take to say good-bye and see her husband go to the battle front.

cases means an important saving in sugar.

Sterilized Jars.—While the berries are cooking, place the empty clean jars and caps in tepid water and bring to a boil, and allow to boil for at least fifteen minutes. Remove the jars from the water only as they are to be filled, and the caps only when they are to be placed on the jars. Simply draw jars and caps off the water and place them in the oven.

Inexpensive Jar Lifters.—Will be convenient in handling the hot jars.

Sterilizing Rubber Rings.—Do not boil rubber rings any length of time.

Just before placing them on the jars dip the rings for a moment into a quart of boiling water into which one teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda has been added.

I am thinking especially of dis-politeness and mistakes.

While I was housecleaning the other day I came across an old copy of my college magazine, in which was printed the class poem of which I was the author. As I looked at it

I remembered with the greatest dissappointment of my youth. I was a poor writer, the editor had not been able to make out my scrawl, and when the college magazine came out,

the poem over which I had toiled so lovingly was garbled in several places.

There had been one phrase whose praise was my highest gaudron had said was really good. And that phrase was changed!

And Now I Could Smile.

I had been fairly frantic when I first got that magazine. The little changes made me say such absurd things! And of course I couldn't go around explaining to everybody.

As I sat on a trunk in the attic turning the pages I could remember all my impotent indignation and humiliations, yet, instead of significant I was smiling. For all the signs of the humiliation had gone. It didn't seem anything to regret, just something to smile at in the tender way one smiles at all memories.

It is Harder to Forgive One's Own

Mistakes.

That was a difficult part. Mistakes are not quite easy to forgive because there is a mixture of self-blame and nothing is more exasperating than one's own stupidity. The hands we lose because we didn't have the cards never rankle like the hands

we love because we played them foolishly.

But even mistakes begin to fade into harmony with the pattern if you give them a decade or two. "I was foolish, but I learned a good lesson," we say then, or "After all, perhaps it was for the best."

The Things I Forget Most Are Sins of Temptation.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

ROSACEA ALIAS RUM BLOSSOM

A red nose never grew on a hard woman's underwear today. No special brand. Such underwear as is light and comfortable as any one could desire for nine months of the year in the temperate climate. With such armor to protect the vascular system from frequent plunges from cold to hot and back to cold throughout the day, during the period of year when artificial heating is necessary, the young person may wear or leave off outer wraps as she pleases and with only benefit to her general health and the appearance of her nose.

QUEEN OF ALL ANSWERS
THE BABY AND THE HEAT

Is it necessary for a baby 1½ years of age to wear a woolen shirt in the summer months if she wears no other woolen garments?

Answer—Until the dog-days, it is well for the baby to keep on her woolen shirt and woolen stockings. But when the days become very very warm, and everybody suffers from the heat, then a diaper is plenty in the daytime, at least. A baby is more injured by great warmth than an older person, and must be kept cool even if allowed to go naked. The fine, lightweight woolen shirts and stockings are really no harm, though a similar weight of cotton, but better protected against sudden alterations of temperature in the colder part of the year when the house is artificially heated.

New every confirmed reader of this column ought to know that a hot mustard foot bath is the best of all remedies for congestion or inflammation about the opposite pole of the body, be it a jumping toothache, acute middle ear inflammation (earache), acute coryza (head "cold") or any acute congestion or inflammation in nose, throat or chest. Yet it does not follow that a H. M. F. B. will cure rosacea. In fact, it won't help it at all, except momentarily. But warm foot baths are really good for a red nose, and warm feet are to be cultivated through the improvement of the tone of the vaso-motor nervous system, which controls the distribution of the blood throughout the body.

Young women with red noses should wear wool socks. But wool socks would be ridiculous to wear with cotton gauze under-suits. So the pre-emptive rum blossom must include all-wool armor. Not heavy flannels nor thick underwear, but, for indoor workers, very light weight, porous, knitted wool underwear, with light cashmere stockings, or heavy silk stockings, never cotton. By knit wear I mean the ordinary goods sold by all dealers in men's and women's wear.

Will you be so good as to tell me what I should do about a growth on my head which is called a "wart." It has been there for over twenty years and now reaches the size of a small nut, and is quite sore at times. (S. G.)

Answer—A wort is a sebaceous or oil gland in the scalp or elsewhere, which has been closed through some obstruction of the duct, causing accumulation of the thick, cheesy serum within the wall of the gland. Nothing in the world will cure it but surgery, and the little operation is done in a few minutes painlessly, by any doctor in his office without any trouble.

What to Do for a Wart.

Will you be so good as to tell me what I should do about a growth on my head which is called a "wart." It has been there for over twenty years and now reaches the size of a small nut, and is quite sore at times. (S. G.)

Answer—A wort is a sebaceous or oil gland in the scalp or elsewhere, which has been closed through some obstruction of the duct, causing accumulation of the thick, cheesy serum within the wall of the gland. Nothing in the world will cure it but surgery, and the little operation is done in a few minutes painlessly, by any doctor in his office without any trouble.

To Overcome Eczema

Never mind how often you have tried and failed, you can stop burning, itching eczema quickly by applying a little zemo furnished by any druggist for 25c. Extra large bottle, $1.00. Healing begins the moment zemo is applied. In a short time usually every trace of eczema, tetter, pimples, rash, black heads and similar skin diseases will be removed.

For clearing the skin and making it vigorously healthy, always use zemo, the generating, antiseptic liquid. It is not a greasy salve and it does not stain. When others fail it is the one dependable treatment for skin troubles of all kinds.

WHY SOCIETY WOMEN WASH THEIR OWN HAIR.

They do, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and, be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift, but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple home-made caustic mixture. You can use this at a cost of about three cents a shampoo by getting some caustic from your druggist, and dissolving a tea-spoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you. Advertisement.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE

Woman Saved From a Ser- ious Surgical Operation.

Louisville, Ky.—"For four years I suffered from female troubles, headaches, and nervousness. I could not sleep, had no appetite and it hurt me to walk. If I tried to do any work, I would have to lie down before it was finished. The doctors said I would have to be operated on and I simply broke down. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the result is I feel like a new woman. I am well and strong, do all my own house work and have an eight pound baby girl. I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which every woman dreads."—Mrs. Nettie Fishback, 1521 Christy Ave., Louisville, Ky.

Everyone naturally dreads the surgeon's knife. Sometimes nothing else will do, but many times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved the patient and made an operation unnecessary.

CIVIL ENGINEER

Copyright by Fleming H. Revell Company

The rainy season, an inspection of the records had shown, was not due for a month and a half yet. That would give him ample time to complete the dam and the spillway. This year, however, there had been some very unusual rains during the fall and the water back of the dam was now 98 feet deep, which made it 22 feet below the level to which the dam had risen and 20 feet below the spillway. This was much more water than anyone had dreamed would be in the reservoir at that time, and was perhaps more than should have been allowed. Still there was a safety margin of 22 feet, which Vandeventer was sure would be ample. The financial promoters of the project were very anxious to have the reservoir full when the irrigating season opened, and the engineer's judgment had been influenced by their eagerness to get it working.

The broad sheet of water ran back into the valley for many miles. In fact, the dam had transformed the country into a beautiful lake. Sometimes it rained in the mountains when it did not rain down in the valley, and there was a constant, if very small, rise in the level. Vandeventer personally carefully gauged the water every day. Naturally he had noted that it rose gradually, but as the dam rose proportionately more rapidly, he was uneasy. Yet, as a good engineer, he was watchful and largely because of the unfinished spillway he urged the men to the very limit.

The weatherwise from the town, who sometimes rode up to inspect the work, assured Vandeventer that it could not possibly rain before March, and the more fact that so much water had fallen rendered it more improbable that any more would come down. But on three on the afternoon of January sixth it suddenly began to rain hard without warning and with no premonition on the part of anybody.

It was not one of those terrible downpours known as cloudbursts, but it was extremely hard, steady rain.

The heavens over the range were black with clouds and so far as anyone at the dam could see, it was raining from the crest of the mountains down. There were some anxious discussions in the dining room of the resident engineer and his American assistants.

At four o'clock it was decided to open the undersluice gate about halfway, but when this was done the volume of water it was capable of discharging was too small to help very much, and on opening it to its fullest extent the velocity of the water rushing through was so great that the river bed was rapidly scoured out.

For fear of undermining the toe of the dam it was necessary partially to close the sluice once more.

The water was rising, first at the rate of three or four inches an hour, then half a foot, and finally nearly a foot. By six o'clock that night it had risen two feet. It was still raining.

Dimly in the faint light of the lantern, He was staring intently down the front of the dam at the water. The lantern was near the edge and it faintly illuminated the black rain-lashed surface below. Vandeventer realized with a shock of horror how much more rapid the rise had been. A quick estimate convinced him that the level of the water was now within eight or nine feet of the dam—and it was still raining!

The face of the kneeling man was hidden by a sou'wester and he had on a heavy black rubber raincoat. Vandeventer reached over and touched him on the shoulder.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

The kneeling man sprang up with an exclamation. It was Meade. The relief in Vandeventer's mind was great at the recognition.

"I just came out to look at the water. I couldn't sleep with all that pounding on the iron roof of the quarters, so I dressed and came out."

Vandeventer opened the slide of his own lantern and threw the light on the reservoir.

"It's risen eight or ten feet since we saw it, and with this rain."

"It's not coming down so hard as it was when I first came out here," said Meade. "I think you can see it slackening yourself."

"Yes," said the resident engineer, listening a moment. "I believe it is. If it stops now," he continued thoughtfully, "we ought to be safe."

"Yes, I think so," answered Meade.

In the night alone, together in that crisis in their fortunes, the two men were interchanging thoughts and ideas on terms of perfect equality. It did not occur to Vandeventer to question why, and that they were doing so aroused no surprise in the mind of Meade.

"Of course," continued Meade, "even if it does stop raining we'll continue to get a lot of runoff from the watershed for some time."

ing hard at that hour, although not quite so furiously as it had been. If it did rain until morning at the present rate, there would still be a margin of safety of perhaps fourteen or fifteen feet at dawn. Although the situation required watchfulness and was somewhat alarming, it was not desperate. The men were advised to put in all the time in their builds so as to be good and ready for the hard battle which might come in the morning, and as they were all tired out with their day's work the little group soon broke up and each man went to his quarters.

Vandeventer, however, could not sleep. The rain kept up steadily all night. The resident engineer finally got up and dressed himself, and protected by high rubber boots and a cowboy slicker and a sou'wester, left his quarters and went out to inspect the dam. He carried a lantern, of course, for it was pitch dark and, if possible, the rain dropping from the black sky made it more difficult to see. He was surprised when he got to the dam to see on the other side another lantern. Closing the slide of his own lantern to prevent observation, and being on familiar ground, he went straight toward the other side. The noise of the rain subdued any sound that he made, and he was able to come quite close to the other light without being noticed.

The lantern was standing on the roadway on top of the dam. A man was kneeling beyond it, his figure seen

"Yes," said the resident engineer, "that of course, but if the rain stops everywhere we can scarcely have a rise of more than five or six feet, and that would still be a little below the spillway."

"It's stopping here now," pointed out Meade, and, indeed, the force of the downpour was greatly diminished.

The two stood watching the dam and the black lake beyond it in silence for a few moments until the rain practically ceased. The air was misty and heavy with moisture, but the rain was certainly over for the time at any rate.

"Thank goodness," said the resident engineer in great relief. "Now if it's stopped everywhere we'll be all right."

"Yes," said Meade, "and I'm inclined to think it has stopped everywhere. Whoever thought it would rain in January here? There hasn't a drop, to speak of, fallen in January for twenty years, or since there have been any records. Why in heaven's name it had to come now I don't see."

"Look here, Roberts," said Vandeventer suddenly, "you know you're a first-class engineer."

Meade shook his head.

"You can't fool me," said the older man. "I've watched you. You know more about the game than anybody here, except myself. You don't choose to confide in me, although I like you, and I am in a position to help you."

"I appreciate what you say, Mr. Vandeventer," returned the other; "there is no one to whom I should rather tell the whole story than to you, but I can't yet."

"Well, keep your own counsel, but if you ever want a friend, count on me; meanwhile, as a man of experience and ability, what would you do?"

"Get out the men and build up a temporary dam on the top of the roadway here, to turn the flow over to the east bank and make the spillway do more work."

"But the rain has stopped."

"And in all probability will stay stopped—still you never can tell. A few more hours of rain like that we've had and the whole thing would go."

"Splendidly," said the proud father, who then went on to tell of his son's various social, athletic and scholastic successes, and the minister said it was a fine thing to be college bred.

That evening in the Jansen home, which was an modest listener, said:

"Papa, what did Mr. Brown mean by college bred?"

"Oh, that," said papa, who had been looking over his son's bills, "is a four years loaf."

It is not always necessary to make a direct accusation, as he showed her the wishbone, "you take hold here. Then we must both make a wish and pull, and when it breaks the one who has the bigger part of it will have half of her wish granted." But I don't know what you wish for," she protested. "Oh, you can think of something," he said. "No, I can't," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much." Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed. "Will you really?" she asked. "Yes."

"Well, then, there's no use fooling with the old wishbone," she interrupted with a glad smile; you can have me."

"How is Robert getting on at college?" asked the minister, who was being entertained at dinner.

"Splendidly," said the proud father, who then went on to tell of his son's various social, athletic and scholastic successes, and the minister said it was a fine thing to be college bred.
